10.00am: Guest Speaker: Darren Isenberg

We all know that two negatives make a positive ... but while that may work in maths, it certainly DOESN'T work when it comes to dealing with people. You can't insult someone and then try make things better by insulting them again!

Being a positive influence among your colleagues is one of the most valuable traits a person can have in business but, just like our ability to drive or look cool on the dance floor at a conference dinner, it is also a skill we often severely overestimate in ourselves.
